Co-Alliance

- Co-Alliance is a modern partnership of local agriculture and energy cooperatives with community roots; it was organized in the 1920s and was formally established in 2002.
- The first half of the 20th century saw the development and early success of local farmer-owned county cooperatives. By 1960, there was a co-op in every county in Indiana working to serve farmers. Since then, cooperatives have consolidated, and Co-Alliance is the result of the merger of five cooperatives. Co-Alliance is one of the largest, most successful agribusiness and energy marketing and supply cooperatives in the Midwest.
- They combine industry expertise, high quality products and leading technology to deliver innovative solutions in energy, agronomy, grain marketing, swine/animal nutrition to their customers, both members and nonmembers.
- The co-op is a service-oriented company owned and operated by people who live in the community, and have a vested interest in supporting those they serve. Being active in the communities and giving back is part of their mission. They donate time, money and use of their facilities to numerous local organizations. Co-Alliance also participates in local festivals and events. Over the years, they have returned millions of dollars to their communities in patronage, equity, and support for programs.
- Co-Alliance is divided into 8 Districts with a representative from each district serving on the governing body, the Board of Directors. The purpose of the Board of Directors is to evaluate the overall direction and strategy of the cooperative business, which has core divisions of Agronomy, Energy, Grain and Swine and Animal Nutrition. The directors are elected by the shareholders to 4- year terms by the shareholders in their district.
- Their headquarters are located in Indianapolis, Indiana, with more than 80 locations across Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio. Co-Alliance has two locations in La Porte County- one in Union Mills at 3551 W 800 South and the other in Rolling Prairie at 310 South Prairie Street.
